ALLARD RETURNS MONEY TO TAXPAYERS COLORADO LAWMAKER HAS RETURNED $2.4 MILLION SINCE 1991

Washington, D.C. – U.S. Senator Wayne Allard (R-CO) announced today that for the eleventh year in a row he has returned money from his operating budget to the taxpayers. Allard said that he has returned $93,867.89 from this year's operating budget to the treasury.

"I believe a public official must lead through example," said Allard. "The people of Colorado sent me to Washington to be a good steward of their tax dollars."

This year's total brings Allard's five year total amount returned to the taxpayers in the Senate to $699,342.58 and his total since being elected to Congress in 1991 to more than $2.4 million.

Allard said that by making it a priority to return money annually to the treasury, it gives him greater credibility when he questions federal agencies on their spending.

"By making it a priority to return money annually to the treasury, my concerns over federal spending are taken more seriously," added Allard. "When I ask a federal agency what they are doing to hold down spending, they know I am only asking of them what I ask of myself."
